

Dr. Sharon Zuckerman was born and grew up in Jerusalem. She completed her B.A., M.A. and PhD. degrees at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, and one post-doctoral year at Harvard University as a Fulbright and Rothschild fellow. Today she is a senior lecturer and the head of the Archaeology of the Biblical Period section at the Institute of Archaeology, The Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

Dr. Zuckerman served as an area supervisor in the Selz Foundation Hazor Excavations in memory Of Yigael Yadin since 1990, and since 2006 she is the co-director of the project (with Prof. Amnon Ben-Tor). She also heads independent projects, such as the renewed excavations at the Lower City of Hazor and the publication project of the Middle Bronze Age cultic precinct at Nahariya. Dr. Zuckerman is a senior member of the research group "Archaeologies of Memory" at Scholion – Interdisciplinary Center in the Humanities and Jewish Studies at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. She won research grants of the Israel Science Foundation, Thyssen Foundation and the Shelby White – Leon Levy Archaeological Publications Program (Harvard University).

Dr. Zuckerman main research interests include the archaeology of the Bronze Age of the southern Levant, Interconnections in the eastern Mediterranean during the 3rd-2nd millennia BCE, the archaeology of religion and ritual, processes of abandonment and destruction in the archaeological record and issues of memory and material culture in ancient societies.

Sharon is married to Gadi and is the proud mother of Ido (who was born when she wrote her doctoral dissertation) and Noam (born when she received her tenure).
